

Brown & Brown Absence Services Group and Professional Disability Associates (PDA) are proud to offer a unique service that bridges the gap between a Social Security Disability (SSDI) award and a lump sum settlement. Through this service, carriers will have an opportunity to reduce their pending overpayment balance and increase their settlement acceptance rate, thereby reducing reserve liability in two important ways.

We're combining Brown & Brown's strong data analytics and predictive modeling capabilities with PDA's deep claim management expertise to identify the best settlement opportunities to pursue at precisely the right time.

Standard workflow

Carrier customization

Carriers can provide scheduled hearing dates for non-represented hearings to Brown & Brown for on-going monitoring.

Carriers can provide input on their specific settlement philosophy to ensure that our reviews are consistent and actionable.

Carriers can decide whether their own team or PDA resources communicate settlement offers to the claimant.

By connecting the claimant's overpayment obligation to the financial benefit of a settlement offer, carriers can eliminate unnecessary delays in the financial transactions and create a positive service experience for claimants—while also improving their settlement acceptance rate and reducing overall reserve liability.
